

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Systems and methods of analyzing data and for specifying and applying user-selected, user-variable sequences of mathematical data preparation operations to data and methods for normalizing data that include dividing the data into a plurality of groups where the number of groups is a function of the range and number of values and for calculating a normalization correction for each group are disclosed.